

Extra Credit – The Giant Plot Map

Title of Story: _____

Directions:

This page shows you what a plot map should look like. You will need to create a map like this on a poster board and then fill in each section with a full paragraph (4-5 sentences each). You can create your map from any short story in your purple literature book with the exception of the story that you used for your first plot map.

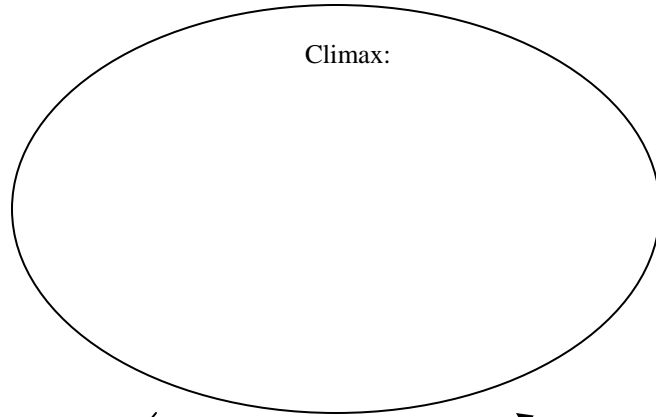

Your map can be shaped like a roller coaster, a mountain, or anything else that will illustrate the rising and falling action of a short story.

Your map must include a paragraph for the exposition, three events in the rising action, the climax, and the resolution.

You will earn points for the content of the paragraphs, the creativity of the poster, and the overall appearance.

If you have any questions about this project, see me before you start. (15 Bonus Points Are Possible)
